WITNESSES IN JURY INQUIRY UPHELD IN NOT TESTIFYING

Appeals Court Sustains Refusal to Answer Questions on Ground That to Do So Might Incriminate Themselves.

ASKED ABOUT VENIRE IN RICHARDS TRIAL

Employe of Attorneys and Negro Still Under Bond for Diversion of Panel List but Are Freed on Contempt Charges.

ST. LOUIS, May 5.—The St. Louis Court of Appeals today decided that Miss Odessa Simpkins, law office stenographer, and Henry West, Negro, former courthouse messenger, could not be compelled by the grand jury to answer its questions, answers to which they said, might tend to incriminate them. The two are witnesses into the diversion of grand jury lists, and alleged jury tampering in the trial of Paul A. Richards, attorney, acquitted a year ago of the charge of kidnapping for ransom in the Alexander Bader case. Circuit Judge Bader a week ago entered the two sent to jail until they should answer the grand jury's questions. Their attorney, Sigmund Bas, applied to the Court of Appeals for a writ ordering their release, pleading that they were within their constitutional rights in refusing to answer, on the ground that they feared self-incrimination. The three members of the court, Judges Becker, Kane and McCullen, today concurred in granting the writ.

Still Under Bonds

Miss Simpkins and West need not go to jail for their refusal to testify, but they are still under common law bonds of $1000 each, given at the time of their arrest, March 20. The two, as shown by the grand jury's record furnished to the Court of Appeals, were asked by the grand jury, and refused to say, whether petit jury lists were taken by West, in advance of the summoning of the juries, to the office of Rev. R. C. Lacy, attorney for Richards, in the Missouri Pacific Annex building, were delivered by West to Miss Simpkins, employee of the office, and were copied by her for Lacy's use.

The grand jury's record, filed with the Appellate Court, showed also that Miss Simpkins refused to state whether, after her arrest March 20, she took jury lists of March 6, 13 and 20 from a bookcase in Lacy's law office, and gave them to city detectives. Before this question was asked of Miss Simpkins, the detective who arrested her, and a policewoman who worked with her, had testified before the grand jury.

Circuit Judge Bader argued today before the Appellate Court that the constitutional rights of the two witnesses were clear, and were those guaranteed for 1000 years or more, and that to compel them to answer questions which might incriminate them would be equivalent to the giving of a grand jury.

Attorney Bas argued today before the Appellate Court that the constitutional rights of the two witnesses were clear, and were those guaranteed for 1000 years or more, and that to compel them to answer questions which might incriminate them would be equivalent to the giving of a grand jury.

Bass Not Questioned

The Judges did not question Bass, but they all put questions to Assistant Circuit Attorney McLaughlin, who argued in support of Judge Bader's order. McLaughlin cited the precedents in the Hollaway case, in Cole County, Hollaway having been a Jefferson City reporter who was falsely accused of perjury in testimony. McLaughlin cited court decisions to the effect that a Circuit Judge had the right to determine whether answers to questions would incriminate a witness. He also said these two witnesses had been assured by Circuit Attorney Miller, that they would not be indicted.

Question of Conspiracy

McLaughlin said also that the division of jury lists from their proper destination, as was done by West, is not a crime under the law, and therefore that no indictment could be found against the two.

Judge Becker and McCullen replied that the crime of conspiracy to bribe jurors could be charged, and that, regardless of Circuit Attorney Miller's promise, another grand jury might indict them.

Judge Kane asked whether the Circuit Attorney was not in possession of statements made by the two witnesses at the time of their arrest. McLaughlin said there were such statements, but that it might not be possible to use them as evidence.

KIDNAPED GIRL IS SAFE: HOME AGAIN

MARGARET McMATH

Child Returned to Father on Coast Guard Boat—Had Been Missing Since Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

HARWICHPORT, Mass., May 5.—Margaret McMath, 10-year-old kidnaped daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil C. McNath, formerly of Detroit, was returned to her parents late today.

She was kidnaped Tuesday afternoon after being lured from the Harwich Center Grammar School.

The child was returned to her father on the Coast Guard surf boat 9259 in a bay in front of Weymouth Harbor.

While the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil C. McMath, awaited word from the kidnappers, Gen. David C. Needham, head of the State Police, refused a request of the McMaths that his officers withdraw from the case for 24 hours. The family later became resigned to his position.

Lieut. Ernest Bradford of the State Police explained that withdrawal of police might lead to other kidnappings.

The grand jury's record, filed with the Appellate Court, showed also that Miss Simpkins refused to state whether, after her arrest March 20, she took jury lists of March 6, 13 and 20 from a bookcase in Lacy's law office, and gave them to city detectives. PLAN ANNOUNCED FOR SECOND BONUS ARMY AT CAPITAL

Leaders of Veterans Confer With President's Secretary and Make Statement About Convention.

MAY 13 TO 18 DATES FOR THE MEETING

Government Will Provide Site for Caring for Accredited Delegates, It is Said.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Representatives of veterans' organizations seeking payment of the bonus said today in a statement that arrangements had been made for a convention of the ex-service men in Washington from May 13 to May 18.

The statement was given out by the veterans' representatives at the White House, after conferences with Louis Howe, the President's secretary, and they said it had Howe's approval.

"While here," the statement said, "the authorities will provide quarters for the properly accredited delegates who are unable to make provisions for their own accommodations."

The statement said the delegates, selected on the basis of 20 for each congressional district, would return to their homes immediately after the convention ended.

The veterans said, however, that the site for the accommodation of the ex-service men "will be provided by the Government."

"It will be on Government land," the statement added, "outside of the limits of the District of Columbia and convenient to the meeting place at Washington."

The statement said the committee which had been formed to conduct their delegates and their visitors without credentials to the gathering "must look after themselves."

The gathering was described as designed to promote: Immediate cash payment of the adjusted service certificates; restoration of disability compensation and allowances and immediate remedial relief for the unemployed and farmers.

The statement was issued by George D. Brady, Harold Hickeron, Emanuel Levin, Edward J. Williams and Albert G. Sellers.

All five were present in Washington during the bonus army march last summer.

They said Williams represented the khaki shirts of America, Levin the Workers' Ex-Servicemen, Men's League, Sellers the B. E. F. Rank and File of America, Inc., Brady the same organization, and Hickeron the Central Rank and File.

They added that they had no connection with Harold Kukluk, and others who have announced they contemplated a call for another march on Washington.

The statement issued by the group said a resolution would be offered today to appropriate funds to provide the delegates with army rations in addition to the sleeping accommodations.

Body of the resolution would be offered in the House by Representative Patman (Dem., Texas).

SAYS INSURE FIRM, THOUGH LOSING, PAID DIVIDENDS

Receiver Declares It Handed Out $1,104,191 in Excess of Available Income.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 5.—The United States dollar fell so low today that it took more than $4 to buy a pound. The pound is normally worth $4.85, but for a long time has been fluctuating around $3.85. This is the first time the pound has sold as high as $4 since England went off the gold standard Sept. 25, 1931.

The dollar quotation took a sharp downward slide to $4.01 to the pound, but strengthened somewhat at the close to $3.97.

The financial district understands that the British Government's equalization fund is not being used in connection with the slump of the dollar.

When Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain obtained the approval of the House of Commons yesterday for an increase in the fund from $150,000,000 to $350,000,000 (roughly $385,000,000 to $1,385,000,000), he emphatically denied that the fund was being used to support the pound.

The receiver, Samuel V. White, said he had no hope for any return of investments, even under improved economic conditions. The report stated that United Public Service Co. lost money for five years but that dividends were continued during the time.

The report said the company, a subsidiary of the $2,000,000,000 Mid-West Utilities Co., was in debt $5,527,827.

BODY OF MURDERED BOY, 5, FOUND IN CLEVELAND BARN

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, May 5.—The body of 5-year-old Samuel Golovine was found in the barn behind the home of his parents in an eastern residential section of Cleveland today. Police said he had been murdered, and indicated they were seeking a degenerate.

Nine adults and five children were taken to St. Luke's Hospital for treatment, after which most of them continued their journey in other buses. The driver of the bus, John Fluhr of Chicago, said the steering apparatus broke.

WOMAN FINED FOR HITTING
ANOTHER WOMAN WITH BOTTLE

Mrs. Marie Sansone, Wife of Fruit
Store Proprietor, Must Pay $100.

Mrs. Marie Sansone, 6022 Kingsbury avenue, who has filed a divorce suit against Antonio Sansone, proprietor of a fruit store at 6046 Delmar boulevard, was fined $100 by Police Judge Flanagan today for disturbing the peace of Mrs. Kathryn Sturdavan, 5556 Clayton road, Richmond Heights, last April 12.

Mrs. Sturdavan testified Mrs. Sansone struck her in the face with an olive oil bottle, blacking her eye, while she was seated in an automobile in front of Sansone's store. On several occasions after the assault, Mrs. Sturdavan testified, Mrs. Sansone passed by the Sunshine Market, Clayton road and Yale avenue, where Mrs. Sturdavan is employed, and taunted her about the black eye.

Mrs. Sansone denied the assault charge and offered four witnesses, including her small son and daughter, who testified she was at her apartment at the time in question. Mrs. Sturdavan was formerly employed at a store operated jointly by Sansone and his wife.

ILLINOIS BANK REOPENING BILL IS RULED UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Attorney-General's Ruling on Measure for Waivers of 75 Per Cent. of Unsecured Deposits.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 5.—Attorney-General Otto Kerner today advised Gov. Horner that the bill to permit downstate banks to reopen on April 1, after 75 per cent of the unsecured deposits were unconstitutional. Sponsored by the House Banking Committee, the bill had been rushed through the Legislature in an effort to aid the resumption of business by unopened State banks.

The Attorney-General held that it gave an unwarranted delegation of legislative power in authorizing downstate circuit Judges to order banks reopened if waivers are obtained on 75 per cent of the deposits, the waivers to be binding on the banks. The bill was introduced by Gov. Horner was held, went in the Judges an arbitrary power to determine questions of public policy in that minority creditors would be forced to agree to a change in their contractual relationship with the banks.

Assets of Patent and Model.

Horner's plan was accepted by the Marvel Adding Machine Co. by Circuit Judge Calhoun yesterday. The action was taken at the request of the Utility Tool & Manufacturing Co., a creditor, and was by consent of officers of the defendant corporation. The only assets of the Marvel Co. it was stated, consist of a patent for an adding machine and a working model which the Utility Co. requested be sold to meet claims.

FARM CONFEREES AGREE ON ALL BUT ONE POINT IN BILL

They Split on Cost Guarantee Amendment and House and Senate Must Decide the Issue.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 5—House and Senate conferees have reached agreement on all differences in the farm bill except the Senate's Norris-Simpson cost-of-production guarantee amendment, to which Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is opposed.

It was decided last night to refer this question back to each branch for final decision, with the House group prepared to make its partial report today. If the House is willing to accept the amendment, final congressional action will be a mere formality. If it decides to support Wallace, another vote on the amendment will be necessary when the Senate resumes work Monday, with a prospect of further delay if the Senate votes on the amendment's retention. Speaker Rainey has set Monday for the House vote on the amendment.

Senatorial leaders privately expressed the opinion that there was a possibility the Senate would not back down unless direct word came from President Roosevelt that he wanted the plan taken out.

The cost-of-production amendment was championed in the Senate by Norris (Rep.), Nebraska. Elements of its provisions would be optional.

Fears Cross-Fire of Conflict.
John A. Simpson, the other sponsor of the plan, is the veteran president of the Farmers' Union and legislative representative of the Farmers' Holiday Association, which yesterday at Des Moines, Iowa, voted to call a farm strike for May 13. Frederic P. Lee, Wallace's spokesman to the conferees, and who drew the administration farm relief program under the direction of the President and Wallace, urged rejection of the amendment.

Wallace's opposition is based on the belief that, with alternative plans for setting the price "goals" of the bill, endless conflict between farmers would arise and the administrators of the bill be caught in the cross-fires.

Secretary Wallace was represented today by Speaker Rainey as regarding the Norris-Simpson amendment as "unworkable." "Secretary Wallace told me that the so-called Simpson amendment would muss things up, so that he was afraid of it," Rainey said yesterday.

The Norris-Simpson amendment proposes that Wallace be empowered to proclaim minimum prices at which farm commodities shall sell — these prices to be equal to the cost of production plus a reasonable profit to the farmer. Calculation of the production cost would involve such factors as prices farmers pay for consumption goods, wage levels of farm labor, capitalization of the farm plant and other factors. Simpson's amendment, if adopted, by exercising this power, fixing farm prices well above present levels, the farm problem would disappear overnight.

Wallace favors the parity price as the goal of the relief administration. This price would represent a return to pre-war, 1909-1914, levels, to return the farmer the purchasing power he had at that time in relation to the price he pays for goods. On April 15 the prices farmers paid equalled exactly the pre-war level. But as this level rises, the "goal" price would increase with the idea of closing the gap between levels of farm costs and farm prices.

The conferees split five and five on cost-of-production guarantees, with Senators arrayed against Representatives. The Senators indicated they would put the question of dropping the amendment up to the Senate.

Mortgage Interest Rates.
A House provision that farmers obtaining mortgage refinancing loans shall pay 4½ percent interest when the loans are made through co-operative loan associations and a similar rate if obtained directly from land banks was retained. The Senate had voted that the lower rate prevail in both cases.

The limit on salaries for administrators of both the farm relief and mortgage refinancing sections was raised to $10,000, as approved by the House, from the maximum of $8,000 set by the Senate.

Sugar cane, sugar cane, livestock and sheep were definitely eliminated from the basic commodities of the bill. Sugar cane and sugar beets were inserted in the bill by the Senate. Their removal does not eliminate the prospect of splitting up the American sugar market among domestic, insular and Cuban producers, as the trade agreement provision of the bill remains intact. Under this Wallace would have power to negotiate agreements of groups dealing in practically any agricultural commodity, including agreements with parties in foreign countries to control prices and output.

Cattle and sheep were in the original administration plan as passed by the House but eliminated by the Senate without opposition from Wallace, who regards specific control programs for these as difficult to administer because of no distinct relationship to acreage. He insists on the retention of cattle, which will be administered in relation with corn. No disposition to eliminate hogs, corn, cotton, wheat, milk and its products, and rice was shown by the conferees.

GOVERNOR'S WIFE JOINS PICKET LINE OF CHILD STRIKERS

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot,
Dressed in Red, Marches
With Girls Past Factory Involved.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ALLENTOWN, Pa., May 5.—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, dressed in red, marched in the picket line with Lehigh Valley's child strikers today. The wife of the Governor of Pennsylvania had announced she would do this after listening to the sordid stories of girls employed in the sweatshops of Allentown, Northampton and Catawissa.

With a girl on each arm, Mrs. Pinchot tramped up and down past the factory of the Morris Feser Shirt Co. A hundred girls and boys followed her. Mrs. Pinchot asserted her picket line against wages and because of charges of immoral conditions made by girls at a private hearing before the Governor's commission.

Charged Made by Girls.
Girls told Mrs. Pinchot and Miss Charlotte E. Carr, Deputy Secretary of Labor and Industry, at the hearing that they had lost their jobs because they resisted advances of employers.

The people of Pennsylvania are gradually becoming aroused to the outrageous conditions of under payment and long hours in certain factories, shops, mills and mines in Pennsylvania," the Governor's wife asserted as she joined the pickets. "I want to help call attention to the facts, believing that great assistance in correcting these conditions can be given by an aroused public opinion."

Mrs. Pinchot wore on her dress a placard bearing the word "Striker."

Stories of Long Work Hours.
The child workers who told their stories of illegal working hours and pitiful pay earlier yesterday to the Governor's investigating committee.

Stories of the reality of poverty, the hardships endured by the sweatshop children stirred Mrs. Pinchot to offer to join them in their fight for a living wage. She said:

"These conditions are appalling. We must fight until they are bettered. Only proper legislation will correct the situation. We must keep on trying for a minimum wage law."

"Conditions are bad in the Lehigh Valley, but they are not much worse than they are all over the State. I've been investigating them, talking to the girls."

"And I know that the only industrial State which has a lower wage scale than Pennsylvania is New Hampshire."

She added:

"It won't be my first time in a picket line. I've worked with strikers before, in New York and Washington."

Then, underfed boys and girls forced to leave school to earn a few cents a day for the support of unemployed families took the witness stand one by one and told of paying for the privilege of working long hours in Lehigh Valley shirt factories, for wages ranging from 75 cents to $3 or $4 a week.

Employers in the shirt industry gave their testimony in the morning, denying charges that they exploited child labor.

SUITS TO PREVENT SALE
OF SKOURAS BROS. PROPERTY

Bondholder Wants Assets Sequestered for Benefit of Those Holding Securities.

Suit asking that assets of Skouras Bros. Enterprises, in receivership, be sequestered for benefit of bondholders was filed in Circuit Court today by Edwin V. Glaser, owner of bonds with a face value of $2000.

Glaser asked also that the receivers be enjoined from disposing of personal property and the West End Lyric Theater. His bonds, which he alleged were in default, were part of a $4,050,000 issue of the Central Properties Corporation, Skouras' subsidiary. The bonds were guaranteed by the Skouras company.

Judge Calhoun set June 1 as the day for the receivers to show cause why Glaser's requests should not be granted.

Senate Amends Bill Adding
$50,000,000 to Funds
of R. F. C.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 5.—Steps to force railroad, bank and other large corporations to cut the big salaries paid their officers were taken by the Senate yesterday in passing a bill authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to purchase or make loans on preferred stock of insurance companies.

The measure was amended so as to prohibit future loans by the R. F. C. to any corporation paying a salary of more than $17,500 to an individual. The salary restriction was proposed by Senator Walsh (Dem.), Massachusetts, and was interpreted by Senators as meaning that many railroads and banks, in order to obtain further loans, must reduce present salaries sharply.

The bill, introduced by Senator Fletcher (Dem.), Florida, already carried the salary restriction as to insurance companies, and the $17,500 would include salary, bonus or commission from subsidiary as well as a parent corporation.

As originally offered, the bill authorized the R. F. C. to increase its borrowings by $100,000,000 to make the stock purchase loans to aid financing of insurance companies, but this was cut to $50,000,000 on motion of Senator King (Dem.), Utah, who with Senator Robinson (Rep.), Indiana, assailed the measure.

The insurance companies also would be required to put up new capital equal to the stock offered to the R. F. C. as collateral or sold to that corporation. They also must agree not to retire any of their capital securities while they are held by the R. F. C.

Companies in states prohibiting the issuance of preferred stock exempt from double liability would be permitted to sell bonds, notes or debentures or offer them as collateral for loans.

Other amendments incorporated included one by Johnson (Rep.), California, authorizing R. F. C. loans up to $12,000,000 to municipalities and school districts in Southern California for rebuilding schools destroyed in the recent earthquake; another by Buckley (Dem.), Ohio, to permit loans to state insurance funds maintained.

S. W. STRAUS BONDHOLDERS COMMITTEE IS ENJOINED

New York Court Appoints Three
Receivers for 60 Issues of Mortgage Bonds.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 5.—Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook yesterday enjoined Lewis H. Pounds,
George Gordon Battie and other members of an independent bondholders' committee from functioning in regard to 60 issues of mortgage bonds issued by S. W. Straus & Co.

The court appointed James W.
Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, George Frankenthaler and Robert McCurdy Marsh as receivers for the 60 Straus issues in the hands of the committee.

The decision was in an action brought by Patrick Harrigan and other individual owners of Straus bonds who charged that the so-called independent bondholders' committee was created to protect the interests of the Straus Company.

POST-DISPATCH REPRODUCED FOR WINDOW DECORATION

Pages of the Post-Dispatch sports news of April 24 have been reproduced in greatly enlarged size and are used to decorate 8x17 foot show windows of Union-May-Stern
Co., 1128 Olive street, in a radio salon.

The windows give the appearance of a newspaper, with headlines of sporting events and pictures tremendously magnified. A tear in the center of the page permits the display of radios.

Hurt in Second Accident
on East Side.

Edward Stromberg, 47 years old,

738 South Fiftieth street, Centreville Township, south of East St.Louis, was struck and fatally injured by an automobile last night

after he had stepped from his own car, to view the results of a minor collision between two other automobiles which had just taken place.

The accident occurred in the 3600
block of Bond avenue, Centreville
Township. The machine which hit
Stromberg was driven by Benjamin

Bizer, Negro, 4242 Tudor avenue,

East St. Louis, who said Stromberg stepped in front of his car before he could turn aside.

Stromberg was taken to St.

Mary's Hospital, where he was pronounced dead of a fractured skull.

Bizer was held for an inquest.

Mrs. Mary Thorburn, 50, 6303

when she was struck by an automobile as she was crossing Clara avenue at Delmar boulevard. The driver of the machine, Mrs. Maxine

Hospital. She said traffic lights gave her the right of way as she drove south in Clara avenue.

STILL UNDECIDED
ON WHAT TO DO
TO GOLD HOLDERS

Attorney-General Vague,
Suggests Publishing
Names May Be Substitute for Prosecution.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 5.—Attorney-General Cummings said yesterday that Secretary Woodin of the Treasury Department and he had considered the feasibility of publishing the names of alleged hoarders of gold and gold certificates. No names have been communicated by the Treasury Department.

"The main purpose of the President's executive order," said the Attorney-General, "was to drive gold out of hoarding. Publication of the Treasury list has been under consideration. The Government, however, does not want to pillory anyone, and the lists are said to have some errors."

The announcement was the first direct intimation that the Government might give out names.

Vague in His Reply.

The Attorney-General vague in his replies to questions regarding the immediate prosecution of holders of gold and gold certificates. He said there would be "no activity on the part of the Department of Justice except in special instances" until Treasury and Justice officials could check and recheck the large mass of information accumulated by the Treasury Department from various sources.

He added that the Department of Justice did not yet have the date of persons who had withdrawn gold before the President's executive order.

"It is reasonable to assume," he said, "that when the time comes we will get those lists."

Asked whether the Department of Justice would accept the challenge of former Senator Thomas of Colorado, who put it, "announced that he had $120 in gold and defied the Government to try to take it away from him," Cummings said:

"The distinguished Senator will have to raise the ante."

When questioned how high the ante would have to be to force prosecution, the Attorney-General observed that in a poker game it was not customary to announce before at what figure one expected to "call."

A poker-playing reporter replied to this sally that the presidential order had set the "limit" at $100. This compelled a laugh from Cummings. Pressed for a specific statement, Cummings said that he could not tell when prosecutions would start.

Cummings said in reply to a question, that the report that a New York lawyer had announced that he had $175,000 in gold stored away for a client and would not touch it in had been brought to his attention.

"As this is understood here," said Cummings, "this gold represents funds held in trust for a non-resident. This presents a complicated case with many involved. If it were an instance of an individual citizen who had this amount of gold stored away it would be a different matter and would have our immediate consideration." As a legal proposition, the Attorney-General said, it might be possible to bring suit to take over the gold held in trust.

Cummings said that District Attorneys on their own initiative might prosecute gold holders when they obtained evidence of hoarding, but he declined to say how District Attorneys might obtain such evidence.

EAR SIDE GRAFT INQUIRY TO BE RECESSED TODAY

After Today's Session Grand Jury
Will Resume Its Investigations
Wednesday.

The St. Clair County grand jury investigating the East Side graft scandal exposed by the Post-Dispatch, recessed at the close of the session at noon today, to resume its inquiry next Wednesday.

Since beginning last Wednesday the second phase of its inquiry the grand jury has been questioning representatives of East Side corporations with a view to determining whether solicitations of bribes were made to them by members of the graft ring for "letting them alone" on assessments, or for reducing assessments.

Interrogation of corporation officials continued through today, and will be resumed when the grand jury takes up the inquiry again next week. In the first phase of the investigation five men were indicted on a charge of conspiracy to obtain bribes, and a sixth on a charge of forgery.

TRACTOR USED IN STILL-RAID

Hauls Off Iron Vat Found Near Jefferson City.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 5.—A tractor and block and tackle were used Wednesday by Federal prohibition officers to haul away a still found in the basement of the Roy Stockman home, eight miles south of here. The still had a 1000-gallon capacity and was made of iron. Eighty-five gallons of liquor was destroyed by the raiders. Fifty-two cases of home-brew also were destroyed. Two automobiles and a block and tackle had failed to move the iron vat. It was dumped in a ditch near the Stockman home. Stockman was brought here for arraignment before U. S. Commissioner D. W. Peters.

22 HORSES ARE ENTERED FOR KENTUCKY DERBY, TOMORROW

RAIN FORECAST
ON EVE OF RACE;
POMPONIUS IS
NO. 1 AT POST

In Pompomius, rather than Ladyman in case of a muddy track, was given some credence when the Pompomius not only outwore his stablemate, but turned in what was by far the outstanding spin of the morning. The bay son of Pompey showed sparkling speed and seemed to be the very best in the soft going. He was well within himself to rate off three-eighths in :35.45, and the half in :45.25.

Ladyman was not extended to make the same distance in :35.45. Pompomius, the Cox reserve, did not work out Brokers' Tip and Beller-maker showed turns of speed. The pair stepped a quarter in :34, and the half in :45.25.

Head Play did not seem to like the going any too well. The big chestnut was timed three-eighths in :38, the half in :31.85 and five furlongs in :1.05.

Sarada took a spin of a half in :31.85 and Kerry Patch, with L. Schaefer, who will pilot him in the Derby, aboard, breezed three-eighths in :37, in company with Sir Leni Shire.

Isaiah's final workout was five-eighths in 1:04.15, after going half miles in :50.45. At Top, not asked for much, was tabbed three-eighths in :42.25. Inlander stepped the half in :50, and Spicton in :37. Final breezed three-eighths in :37.45, and the half in :51.

Head Play May Be Favorite. Head Play, already 4 to 1 and going down, may go to the post a favorite, if it develops there is no further reason to be concerned over an injury to the colt's right hind leg, cut in racing. The horse, so far as has been nicely, apparently to his complete satisfaction of trainers, and no trace of lame ness has been shown in subsequent workouts.

Ladyman, on the other hand, has failed to convince critics he is anything more than a sprinter or that the colt's legs are altogether sound despite his excellent two-year-old record, his early season victory at Haver's Grace and a subsequent private trial over the Derby route in the good time of :20 and fractions.

The experts may be wrong and the public correct. If so, it wouldn't be the first time, yet until they actually see it, most observers will not believe a son of Pompey has the ability to go the full Derby distance to win. They recall the Derby of 1926, when Pompey himself, likewise a champion as a two-year-old and subsequent favorite in the Kentucky classic, faded abruptly after challenging Bubbling Over and failed even to place. Blood is thin, is expected to tell and more to come to itself.

Despite the withdrawal of such earlier favorites as Repaid and Swivel, the Derby lineup looks the fastest and best-balanced brought together in several years, whether or not the winner jeopardizes the record of 2:01.45 made two years ago by Twenty Grand.

Fewer St. Louisans to Attend Derby This Year.

There has been reduction in the number of St. Louisans going to Louisville for the Derby this year, as compared to last year. One railroad offering a reduced rate is handling virtually all of business and carried about 200 passengers in its special train last night, and expects to handle about that many tonight, while the other two roads into Louisville did not meet the reduced rate, and therefore are handling very few Derby passengers.

Among those who will miss the big race is Tom Kearney, veteran commissioner, who has been accustomed to go to the Derby with a number of friends. He is not going to make the trip this year.

WRAY'S Column

Thus the average odds against the horses now considered as strong contenders for the rich purse tomorrow are nearly 70 to 1. It takes a master mind to juggle the prices so that the "pay-off" will yield a favorable profit or perhaps only an even break, no matter what horses finish in the money.

Too often the commissioner finds nearly all the money concentrated on a few horses and is unable to balance his book. He is then compelled to gamble just like the players themselves. Sometimes, lightning strikes and the highly-played horses all "come down."

That has happened two or three times—often enough to force practically all the future books in the country out of business, with two exceptions—those of Tom Shaw and Tom Kearney.

As a matter of fact Charley was heavily backed, after the Florida feature, and a considerable sum has been wagered on him across the board, at odds of 30-30-10.

Average is 220 to 1.

SOME interesting possibilities can be developed from an examination of the opening and the current future book odds on the leading candidates as follows:

Openers Present Odds. Odds.

Ladyman 10 to 1. 2 to 1.

Charley 0. 1 to 1.

Kerry Patch 0. 1 to 1.

Mr. Khayam 0. 1 to 1.

Dark Winter 400 to 1. 40 to 1.

Inlander 100 to 1. 40 to 1.

Isaiah 500 to 1. 60 to 1.

Warren 500 to 1. 60 to 1.

Spicton 500 to 1. 60 to 1.

Head Play 100 to 1. 100 to 1.

Charley 0. 1 to 1.

LABOR SECRETARY
AGAIN PLEADS FOR
MINIMUM WAGEUrge House Committee to Include That Provision in 30-Hour Week Bill.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Secretary of Labor Perkins today made a last-minute plea to the House Labor Committee for the inclusion of a minimum wage provision in the shorter work week bill.

The committee prepared to conclude its hearings before taking up the various 30-hour work week bills in executive session Monday. Miss Perkins sent up for the record a letter saying:

"Minimum wage experience has demonstrated that not only are the lower wages not bad but the higher wages have also been supported. Referring to opposition to a minimum wage on the ground that it would become the maximum, she added:

"Conclusive disproof is to be found in the investigations of wages paid before and after the minimum wage rates were put into effect and the constantly increasing proportion of workers receiving more than the minimum rate."

She quoted reports by the California Industrial Welfare Commission and the Minimum Wage Board of the District of Columbia to support this contention.

"The first result to be expected from an industry by industry minimum would be a leveling up of unskilled labor rates within the industry to meet the standard firms," she wrote. "There is a well entrenched custom of paying the skilled worker more than the unskilled. Increasing the wage of the unskilled would, therefore, bring pressure in the direction of forcing the wage of the skilled up somewhat in proportion in order that the differentiation might continue."

Willingness to accept shorter work week legislation proved it is dramatically changed from its present 30-hour form was expressed before the committee today by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors Corporation.

Appearing as a representative of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, Sloan pointed out features in the pending bills which he thought were objectionable, and remarked that if one of the measures were to be made an effective instrument in increasing work, numerous changes would be needed.

He suggested first an average 32-hour week, instead of 30 hours, with authority for employers to add as much as 48 hours during rush periods. He added recommendations for minimum wage provisions, inclusion of intrastate as well as interstate commerce, authority for the Secretary of Labor to exempt specialized workers and a flexible provision under which the shorter work week could be applied or not on imports.

"Absence of accurate current statistics makes any definite statement questionable," Sloan said, "but it is difficult to account for the high estimates that have been placed on the reduction of unemployment this legislation would bring. My own opinion for what it may be worth is that 750,000 would be a fair estimate."

Sloan also said he was "strongly convinced" that the legislation as a permanent measure would be "objectionable." He recommended that it remain in force two years and that it not go into effect until 60 or 90 days after approval, so industry could adjust itself to the change.

GRAND ISLE, La., May 5.—Randi Lereb, the Wisconsin scrub woman who came down the Mississippi in a rowboat seeking quiet and a cure for backache, threatens to leave her island retreat, a new highway is making the Gulf Island into a summer resort, and she says:

"Too many people are coming to the island, so I guess I'll have to move on."

"Cotizable" island dwellers have suggested that she marry among them, but she answers: "I don't need a husband. Men are always in the way and they won't work."

ST. LOUIS GROUP SEES GOV. HORNER ON MINE PROBLEM

Social Justice Committee
Offers to Aid in Efforts
Toward Peace in Union Controversy.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 5.—The Social Justice Commission of St. Louis offered yesterday to bring about peace and the "restoration of constitutional liberties" in the Southern Illinois coal fields.

The Governor, who conferred with a committee of leaders of the commission for more than two hours, said he would be glad to avail himself of its counsel and presented details of State investigations into conditions in the stricken mining area.

The delegation, headed by Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman, chairman of the commission, informed the Governor that its visit was prompted by an appeal of members of the Progressive Miners' Union and their families who appeared before an executive session of the commission last Tuesday. The committee emphasized that it supported neither the cause of the United Mine Workers of America, the two major factions in a controversy that has disrupted the coal fields, but was interested in impartial social justice, the preservation of the inherent rights of individuals and the maintenance of satisfactory living conditions.

Besides Rabbi Isserman, the delegation comprised: Bishop William Scott, Bishop Coadjutor of the Episcopal Church in Missouri; Prof. Joseph Klamon, associate professor of economics at Washington University, and the Rev. William F. Mullally, pastor of St. Mary Magdalene Church.

Briefly summarizing testimony of the witnesses who requested aid from the commission, Rabbi Isserman said the commission was informed that men, women and children live "in terror of their lives" in Franklin and other counties in the heart of the mining area. The committee was informed, he told Gov. Horner, that Progressive miners and their families were molested by both State and local officers; that unprovoked beatings were of almost daily occurrence and that six lives had been lost in a series of disorders which give no sign of abating.

"We just want to know how we can help you to straighten out the situation," Bishop Scarlett explained to the Governor, adding that "I suppose that's a pretty large order."

Gov. Horner replied that it "is not a large order if it can be filled" and then for more than an hour traced in chronological order the disputes. For the first month of his administration, the Governor disclosed, he spent most of his time in attempting to solve the problem. He conceded, although he has served prior to becoming Governor as arbiter in "several hundred labor cases," that this is the most disturbing situation with which he ever has been confronted. He was equally determined to avoid bloodshed and preserve the province of the State government.

After detailing the controversy in the coal fields, Gov. Horner made available to the St. Louis group for its private inspection the data obtained by a legislative committee which has conducted hearings in the mining area and also at Springfield. Its work has not been completed.

Besides representatives from both houses of the Legislature, it contains three personal representatives of the Governor, including Montgomery S. Winning, First Assistant Attorney-General. After leaving the Governor's office, it will be studied this week preparatory to a decision on what further course of action to pursue.

CANDY SALES FOLLOW
ROMANTIC TREND

Gifts of Sweets Now Superseding Post-War Period Remembrances.

A revival of romance and gallantry, apparent in literature and the movies, is also felt in the candy business, according to an interesting Scotch woman who is manager of a local tea room and candy department.

"Utility gifts bought for some time by husbands and sweethearts," she states, "were an expression of the realism of the post-war period. It is really significant that men are now buying more and more boxed candy as Christmas, Valentines and Easter presents. The increase has been noted during each of these holiday seasons the past year."

Delightfully-bored confessions that went begging during the late period of hard-boiled emotions are now in demand in accord with the lavender, old lace and moonlit garden trappings of romance now apparent.

American Products Preferred.

She also declared that candy customers are "buying American." Efforts to vary the kind of candy by importing sweets from Mexico, Italy, Germany, France, England, Canada, Australia and Russia have met little encouragement, she said, for Americans prefer to tastes in candy which have been cultivated since childhood. She cited examples of candies first made 50 years ago that are still popular—lollipops, caramels and candy balloons. Furthermore, Americans, educated in sanitation, want to know where and under what conditions all of their foodstuffs are prepared.

There is no striving for new styles in sweets, she concluded, as there is in clothes.

CALUMET

Three cups cooked veal, diced. One and one-fourth cupfuls carrots, diced. One and one-half cupfuls diced potatoes. One cupful canned or fresh cut string beans. One large onion, chopped. Two and one-half cupfuls water and leftover gravy combined. Two teaspoonsful salt. One-eighth teaspoonful pepper. Three tablespoonsful flour. One cupful diced celery. One-half cupful canned tomatoes. Combine all of the ingredients, arrange in a covered casserole, and bake in a slow oven for two and one-half hours. Meanwhile, prepare a crust as follows: Sift together two cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt and four teaspoons baking powder; work in four tablespoons shortening until the mixture is crumb-like in consistency. Then add three-fourths cup milk and stir until blended. Roll to one-fourth inch thickness and arrange on top of the meat. Increase the temperature of the oven and continue baking 40 minutes until the crust is done. Serves six.

HAM RING

One-half pound spaghetti. One and one-half pound cooked ham, minced.

Two egg whites.

Two cups evaporated milk.

Salt and pepper.

Three tablespoons butter or other fat.

Three tablespoons flour.

Two cups canned tomatoes.

One-half pound mushrooms.

Cayenne pepper.

Mix the ham with the unbeaten egg whites. Slowly add the evaporated milk. Season. Pour into a greased ring mold and bake in a moderate oven for one-half hour.

Cook spaghetti in boiling, salted water until tender; drain.

Using a double boiler, blend together fat or oil, flour and salt.

One-half pound of fresh or canned mushrooms. Add to the tomato sauce and season. Cook together for 20 minutes. Add the spaghetti.

Remove ham ring from greased mold, place on platter and fill the center with the spaghetti mixture.

Rhubarb Jam

Three cupfuls chopped rhubarb. One orange.

One-fourth pound blanched almonds.

One large pineapple.

Five cupfuls sugar.

To the chopped rhubarb add the pineapple also chopped, the juice and rind of the lemon and orange, the sugar, and the almonds. Place in a kettle and simmer gently for one hour, then pour into clean, hot, sterilized glasses and seal.

And a delicious apricot whip may be made thus: Put one cup sliced apricots through a sieve, combine with two cups ground peanut brittle, and one cup whipped cream. Chill well before serving.

Franke Omelet

Use one-quarter cup minced parsley to four or six eggs for a plain or French omelet. Season with salt, pepper and a few drops Worcester sauce. Fine for breakfast or lunch.

Apricot Desserts

A good filling for tarts may be made as follows: Slew one pound of apricots until soft after having soaked them for two hours in warm water. Cool, mash and add one cup sugar.

DRIED BEEF NEED NOT ALWAYS BE CREAMED

Creole Recipes and Other
Methods of Preparation
Suggested.

Certain foods become associated with certain methods of preparation because we rarely serve them in other ways. When dried beef is mentioned, don't you immediately think of serving it in cream sauce? The next time you prepare creamed dried beef add a few green pepper to the sauce, or else diced carrots and peas, just to break the monotony. And instead of serving on toast, serve it with baked or broiled potatoes, steamed rice, baked macaroni or spaghetti.

Creole dried beef makes a delightful luncheon or dinner dish. To prepare it, shred one-fourth pound sliced dried beef and add one cup tomatoes to it. Then add two tablespoons grated cheese, one tablespoon onion juice and one-eighth teaspoon cayenne. Melt two tablespoons butter in a pan and add dried beef mixture. When heated add three well-beaten eggs and cook until thick. Serve at once with toast points or hot biscuits.

Other suggestions for the serving of dried beef are:

Dried Beef in Casserole.

One-fourth pound sliced dried beef.

Four medium sized cooked potatoes.

Two cups diced cooked carrots.

One cup evaporated milk

One cup water

Two tablespoons butter

Two tablespoons flour

One-half teaspoon salt

One-fourth teaspoon pepper

Melt the butter and add the flour and seasonings. When smooth add the milk and water. Cook until thickened. While the sauce is being prepared place the dried beef in cold water and let it stand for 30 minutes. Drain the dried beef well and arrange alternate layers of it and the dried potatoes and carrots in a buttered casserole. Pour the white wine over the whole and bake in a moderate oven, 20 to 25 minutes. Additional vegetables may be added if desired.

Sauted Dried Beef.

Place one-fourth pound sliced dried beef in cold water and let stand 15 minutes. Drain well. Melt one-fourth cup butter in a skillet and add the dried beef. Place over a low flame and cook until the beef is crisp. Serve with scalloped potatoes.

Dried Beef Rolls.

Six large slices dried beef.

Three tablespoons minced dried beef.

One tablespoon butter

One and one-half cups mashed potatoes

Two tablespoons minced green pepper

Two cups hard cooked egg sauce

Place slices of dried beef in water and let stand for 10 minutes. Drain, add minced dried beef and green pepper to potatoes. Spread each slice of beef with the potato mixture and roll up, fastening with toothpicks. Lay rolls in baking dish and dot with butter. Cover and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, for 20 minutes. Serve with egg sauce. A moist dressing may be used in place of the mashed potatoes.

Egg and Anchovy Salad.

Cut hard boiled eggs in half, remove the yolks and mash with a little anchovy paste, adding mayonnaise, a little onion and a little finely minced celery, for contrast. Stuff the whites with the mixture and serve on lettuce with a garnish of curled celery or stuffed olives.

HOW TO RECAPTURE
BEAUTY

Good looks are often a matter of good health. Sparkling eyes and a smooth complexion are a sign of an abundant vitality.

To be charming, conserve your health. Guard against constipation. It often brings wrinkles, shallow breathing, dull eyes, pimples.

Try the pleasant "cereal way" to protect yourself from constipation. Science has proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to excite the intestines, and vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron, which helps build up the blood.

The "bulk" in this delicious cereal is much like that of lettuce. How much safer than abusing your system with pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoons daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

NEW ORLEANS MARKET SERVES DOUGHNUTS

Late Revelers Sugar Their Own and Eat Until Dawn.

A visitor, recently returned from New Orleans, tells with delight of early—very early-morning visits to the French markets, when doughnuts and coffee are served in tremendous supplies to throngs, who at 4 a. m. are returning to homes and hotels after prolonged night festivities.

Delightfully light, crisp doughnuts are eaten hot as made and patred sugar them as they eat, almost unbelievably many at one sitting. Here is a recipe which is said to be similar to the New Orleans method:

French Doughnuts.

One-quarter cup fat.

One-half cup sugar.

One teaspoonful salt.

One cup boiling water.

One cup evaporated milk.

One egg yeast.

One-half cup lukewarm water.

Two eggs.

Four tablespoons quick cooking

flour.

One-half teaspoon salt.

One cup hot chicken stock (or

one cup boiling water and two

bouillon cubes, chicken flavor).

One cup cooked chicken, finely

chopped.

Three egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored.

Three egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Add tapioca and salt to milk and

stock and cook until tapioca is

5 minutes. Stir frequently. Cool slightly.

Add chicken and egg yolks. Fold

in egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven

one hour, or until done.

CHICKEN SOUFFLE

Five tablespoons quick cooking

flour.

One-half teaspoon salt.

One cup milk, scalded.

One cup hot chicken stock (or

one cup boiling water and two

bouillon cubes, chicken flavor).

One cup cooked chicken, finely

chopped.

Three egg yolks, beaten until

thick and lemon-colored.

Three egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Add tapioca and salt to milk and

stock and cook until tapioca is

5 minutes. Stir frequently. Cool slightly.

Add chicken and egg yolks. Fold

in egg whites. Turn into greased

baking dish. Place in pan of hot

water and bake in moderate oven

one hour, or until done.

ORANGE, MUSTARD DRESSING

Three tablespoons flour.

Two tablespoons sugar.

One-quarter tablespoon dry mustard.

One-half teaspoon salt.

One-half cup orange juice.

One whole egg or two egg yolks.

Mix together thoroughly. Cook in double boiler until thickened.

Add one tablespoon butter and one quarter cup lemon juice. Stir. Remove from fire and chill. Use on fruit salads.

SALMON PATTIES

Flake one can salmon, add two eggs well beaten, two tablespoons of raw cream, one-half teaspoon of salt and pinch of pepper. Mix and shape in small flat cakes.

Beat two eggs well and mix with four tablespoons of cold water. Dip

the salmon in this then in sifted breadcrumbs.

Fry in butter until brown on both sides. Serve each patty on a slice of toast and cover with a white sauce to which celery has been added.

SLAIN CHILD'S MOTHER
TESTIFIES FOR 'HEALER'

Deposition Read at Linden, Tex.
Murder Trial of Preacher
Who Killed Baby.

By the Associated Press.

LINDEN, Tex., May 5.—A deposition by Mrs. Sherman Clayton, mother of the slain child, was read by the defense yesterday in the murder trial of Paul Oakley, 20-year-old backwoods preacher and self-styled "divine healer" who strangled three-year-old Bernice Clayton in an attempt "to drive the devil out of her" last Dec. 10.

The child was crippled by infantile paralysis and Paul Oakley, his brother and "disciple," Coy Oakley, and the child's father, Sherman Clayton, were trying to cure her with a weird "lotion" on her hands.

Mrs. Clayton, by deposition, was the final witness for the defense. The deposition recited Mrs. Clayton was too ill to appear in court.

She said Oakley prayed and read the Bible all night at the Clayton home in the pine woods west of Linden to "drive out the devil" and cure the child, but death halted the "healing" rites.

Mrs. Clayton said the child was represented to her as "being under the power" and not until several hours later did she learn the child was dead.

Attorneys' arguments centered on Oakley's mental condition. Testimony of neighbors was at odds; some neighbors believed in Oakley; others did not. Defense alienists said the youth was insane.

Coy Oakley and Clayton also face murder charges in the case. State and defense counsel agreed yesterday that Coy Oakley should go on trial in Hopkins County on a change of venue in August and Sherman's father should be tried here in September.

Systematic

Frank Jaekel, 65-year-old engineer for the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, died suddenly today in the cab of his locomotive, after the train, a combination passenger and freight, had stopped at Tamms, Ill., to take on additional cars. A physician, called to the train, said death apparently was due to heart trouble. The body was taken on the train to East St. Louis, with William Fay, fireman, taking Jaekel's place at the throttle.

Jaekel, who resided at 74 North

Twenty-third street, East St. Louis, was employed by the line for more than 45 years. He was survived by his widow, a son, Julian C. Jaekel, attorney with offices in the Pierce Building, St. Louis, and a daughter, Mrs. Noda Beykirch.

The body was taken to the Brichler undertaking, 2216 State street, East St. Louis.

Late Prof. F. J. Turner
$2000 for History.

By the Associated Press
NEW YORK, May 5.—The Pulitzer prize awards for letters in 1932 were announced last night at the annual dinner of the Friends of the Princeton Library.

The winners:

T. S. Stribling—$1000 for "The Store" as the best novel published during the year by an American Maxwell Anderson—$1000 for "Both Your Houses" as the original play of the year best representing the educational value and power of the state.

Prof. Frederick J. Turner (now dead)—$2000 for "The Significance of Sections in American History" as the best book of the year on the history of the United States.

Prof. Allan Nevins—$1000 for "Grover Cleveland" as the best American biographer; MacLeish poet; and unidentified service to the people; illustrated by an eminent example, excluding as too obvious, the names of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

Archibald MacLeish—$1000 for "Conquistador" as the best volume of verse by an American author published during the year.

Reasons for Awards.

In its findings, the jury gave these reasons for the various selections:

The novel: "Preference has been given to 'The Store' because of its sustained interest, and because of the convincing and comprehensive picture it presents of life in an inland Southern community during the middle eighties of the last century."

The play: "This drama concerns the efforts of a newly-elected Representative at Washington to combat the raiding of the National Treasury by the Appropriations Committee. The spirit of the play is idealistic, it breathes a fine indignation, but it is so conducted that legitimate entertainment values are not lost, and the characters speak a flat with convincing naturalness."

The biography: "This is a selection of studies chosen by certain of the friends of Prof. Turner from among his works. They treat important aspects of the evolution of American civilization in a thorough and fresh way, are based upon a wide reading of sources and are clear and readable."

The bibliography: "A book of value, in the first place, because it supplies what has been needed, a dispassionate and comprehensive survey of the history of Cleveland as portrayed at full length. It is impartially adjusted to his time. It makes a substantial contribution to our political biography and should prove of service for a long time to the lay reader and to the historian."

The verse: "Conquistador," extremely modern in its technique, is on the whole the best poem that has been submitted this year."

Novel Writer a Tennesseean.

Stribling, 52 years old, was born at Clifton, Tenn., on the same day President Garfield was inaugurated. He has written all his writing—seven novels and three books of short stories—in the Tennessee hills. He was co-author of "Rope," a play that ran on Broadway in 1928.

Commons Upholds Tariff Fact.

By the Associated Press
LONDON, May 5.—The Government again scored over the die-hard tariff group in the House of Commons yesterday, a resolution of the Anglo-German trade agreement being carried on the second stage by a vote of 304 to 56. Liberal members supported the Government, while many Laborites abstained from voting. Under the agreement, British coal tariffs would be readjusted in exchange for revisions in duties on a limited number of German manufactures.

Austria Bars Political Uniforms.

VIENNA, May 5.—Chancellor Dolfuss' Government has aimed another blow at the National Socialist (Nazi) movement by issuing a decree forbidding the wearing of political uniforms by the members of any organization except those from which the police are recruited—meaning the Fascist Heimwehr. A decree forbidding political parades and demonstrations had already been issued.

German Delegate on Arrival in New York
Declares Only America Can Solve
World Problems.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 5.—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German Reichsbank, arrived today for economic discussions with President Roosevelt and expressed the opinion that this country was the only one able to solve the world's problems.

"It is fine that America has taken the initiative," he said aboard the liner Deutschland before being transferred at sea to the President from 1914 to 1924, working on the Grand Banks (N. D.) Herald, the San Francisco Chronicle, the New York Globe, the San Francisco Bulletin and the New York World.

In 1925 he began writing plays. A long list of successes includes "What Price Glory," written with Laurence Stallings, and "Elizabeth the Queen."

YAMPA CANYON EXPEDITION

Dotted Scientist to Explore River
District in Colorado.

DENVER, Colo., May 5.—Jean M. F. Dubois, Dutch scientist and explorer, has announced he will lead an expedition to the Yampa River, in the district of Colorado, termed by Dubois as the last frontier in the United States that has not been scientifically explored.

Archaeologists and scientists, Dubois said, believe this area in Northwestern Colorado is rich in historic contributions. The expedition, which plans to start before the end of May, is under assignment from the archaeological department of the University of Denver and the Peabody Museum.

Commons Upholds Tariff Fact.

By the Associated Press
LONDON, May 5.—The Government again scored over the die-hard tariff group in the House of Commons yesterday, a resolution of the Anglo-German trade agreement being carried on the second stage by a vote of 304 to 56. Liberal members supported the Government, while many Laborites abstained from voting. Under the agreement, British coal tariffs would be readjusted in exchange for revisions in duties on a limited number of German manufactures.

Austria Bars Political Uniforms.

VIENNA, May 5.—Chancellor Dolfuss' Government has aimed another blow at the National Socialist (Nazi) movement by issuing a decree forbidding the wearing of political uniforms by the members of any organization except those from which the police are recruited—meaning the Fascist Heimwehr. A decree forbidding political parades and demonstrations had already been issued.

FIGHTING IN SOUTH AMERICA
AMONG FOUR WARRING NATIONS

Paraguay Reports Battle with Bolivia in Gran Chaco; Peruvians Attack Colombian Gunboats.

NEW YORK, May 5.—A dispatch from Asuncion says the Paraguayan Ministry of War announces a battle is raging along the entire front in the Gran Chaco area of the Gran Chaco with Paraguayans repulsing the Bolivian thrusts. Losses were said to have been heavy.

From La Paz came an announcement that detachments of Bolivian troops, after accomplishing their purpose in the Bullo sector, were fighting for the Chaco.

Official reports from Lima, report a Peruvian attack on three Colombian gunboats at the mouth of the Iquitos Parana River. Colombia and Peru are disputing over the seizure of Leticias, on the Amazon River by Peruvians.

"The first truth is that there is more hope this time for our making headway in overcoming the world's crisis because your people have taken the initiative. Let me in a few words: the American people can solve the world's problems."

"The second truth is this: Many people are trying to convince you that the present economic crisis is based on economic reasons. Don't you believe them. Our crisis is a moral one, economic well-being will only return if a fair chance is given to everybody. Instead, all forces are used to keep down the defeated. He is asked to pay, but not allowed to earn."

"And here is a certain truth: Don't try to cure the disease at the source. Remove the causes. Monetary changes, tariff machinery and similar methods may ease the feeling for awhile, but more is needed."

"There are two ways out. One is separation from each other, leading to lower standards of living. The other is international co-operation for opening up new markets. Here is our choice—separation and poverty, or co-operation and prosperity."

"I know I could have been more pleased in addressing you, but I don't think I would have been more helpful. Be sure that I appreciate all the able and noble qualities of the American people, but I did not come to flatter you. I came to be helpful."

This address was broadcast by radio.

SURGEON GENERAL OUT.

The Macom proceeded to Jersey City, N. J., where Dr. Schacht boarded a special train for Washington.

Official's Radio Speech.

After talking with newspaper men on the Deutschland and answering their questions, Dr. Schacht made a brief formal speech in which he said: "There is no time to waste. I came two and a half years ago. I had the bad luck of telling you a good many things which many of you were not pleased to listen to, but which very soon proved to be true. Well, I cannot act against my nature. Therefore, if you will allow me, I am going to speak some more truths. Maybe they will be received this time with less criticism because of the experiences we have, meanwhile been through."

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate iniquities or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong; whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Allentown's Theme Song.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
HEN I read the story in the Post-Dispatch on child labor conditions in Allentown, Pa., I thought the poem of Thomas Hood might be adopted as the anthem of Allentown. Such conditions should have no place in civilized society.

Perryville, Mo. J. A. F.

THE SONG OF THE SHIRT
Thomas Hood (1798-1845).
With fingers weary and worn,
With eyelids heavy and red,
A woman sat, in unwomanly rags,
Plying her needle and thread.
Stitch, stitch, stitch!

In poverty, hunger and dirt;
And still with a voice of dolorous pitch,
She sang the "Song of the Shirt!"

"Work, work, work,
While the cock is crowing aloof!
And work, work, work,
Till the stars shine through the roof!
It's oh! to be a slave
Along with the barbarous Turk,
Where woman has never a soul to save,
If this is Christian work!

"Work, work, work,
Till the brain begins to swim!
Work, work, work,
Till the eyes are heavy and dim!
Seam, and gusset, and band,
Band, and gusset, and seam—
Till over the buttons I fall asleep,
And sew them on a dream!

"O men, with sisters dear!
Men, with mothers and wives!
It is not linen yours are wearing out,
But human creatures' lives!
Stitch, stitch, stitch,

In poverty, hunger and dirt,
Sewing at once, with a double thread,
A shroud as well as a shirt!

"But why do I talk of death,
That phantom of grisly bone?
I hardly fear his terrible shape,
It seems so like my own—
It seems so like my own,
Memento of the fast I keep;
O God! That bread should be so dear,
And flesh and blood so cheap!

"Work, work, work,
My labor never flags;
And what are its wages? A bed of straw,
A crust of bread—and rags.
That shattered roof and this naked floor,
A table, a broken chair—
And a wall so blank my shadow I thank
For sometimes failing there!

"Work, work, work,
From weary frame to chime!
Work, work, work,
A prisoners work for crime!
Band, and gusset, and seam,
Seam, and gusset, and band—
Till the heart is sick and the brain benumbed.

As well as the weary hand.
"Work, work, work,
In the dull December light!
And work, work, work,
When the weather is warm and bright!
While underneath the eaves
The brooding swallows cling,
As if to show me their sunny backs,
And twit me with the spring.

"Oh but to breathe the breath
Of the cowslip and primrose sweet,
With the sky above my head,
And the grass beneath my feet!
For only one short hour
To feel as I used to feel,
Before I knew the woes of want,
And the walk that costs a meal!

"Oh but for one short hour,
A respite, however brief!
No blessed leisure for love or hope,
But only time for grief!
A little weeping would ease my heart;
But in their briny tears
My tears must stop, for every drop
Hinders needle and thread!"

With fingers weary and worn,
With eyelids heavy and red,
A woman sat, in unwomanly rags,
Plying her needle and thread.
Stitch, stitch, stitch!

In poverty, hunger and dirt;
And still with a voice of dolorous pitch,
She sang this "Song of the Shirt!"

The Shanty of Child Labor.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
OUR cartoon and editorial about child labor in the issue of May 3 tell me that, while we send our missionaries to spread civilization among savages, we have in our midst beasts who grind and squeeze every last drop of blood out of the bodies of children for profit. What a glorious progress of savagery!

What are the 12,000,000 unemployed doing about it? What are the parents of these little producers of wealth doing about it? What are our statesmen, schoolmen and preachers doing about it? What is anybody doing about it? Nothing! And we point our finger with scorn at Russia and its "barbarous" people.

AUT. WEISS.

NO UNCONTROLLED INFLATION.

Controlled inflation may raise prices, revive industry, relieve the burden of fixed debt. Uncontrolled inflation might be carried to the point of repudiation of debt, confiscation of savings, complete economic disorganization. It is important, therefore, to ask whether inflation must inevitably get out of hand; whether it can, in fact, be kept under control.

History fully records the disastrous consequences of uncontrolled inflation. The American colonies financed the Revolution by printing paper money instead of taxing or borrowing. By 1780, in consequence, shoes were selling at $100 a pair. In 1790, the currency was funded at 1 cent on the dollar. Its depreciation led Washington to complain that "a wagon-load of money will scarcely buy a wagon-load of provisions." It gave birth to the expression, "not worth a Continental," which is still used to describe utter worthlessness.

France, following her revolution, duplicated our experience. The assignats were multiplied between 1790 and 1795 until the price of shoes had jumped from 5 francs to 200 francs; flour from 2 francs to 225 francs. The price of soap was multiplied by 44; of sugar by 65; of wood by 125. Redemption ultimately came at the rate of 100 for 1. Civil War greenbacks in America fell by 1864 to 30 cents on the dollar, cut real wages by a third, added $500,000,000

President Roosevelt, by his series of conversations with envoys of other countries, not only has laid the groundwork for the meeting's success, but has brought its implications emphatically into the public eye. The auguries, as well as the hopes of the world, are for success of the London conference.

CHILDREN ON STRIKE

If ever a strike of workers deserved public sympathy, it is the demonstration of child sweatshop employees in Pennsylvania against miserly wages and barbarous working conditions. That it receives such sympathy there can be no doubt.

The strike now has spread to include 300 children who hitherto had not dared to leave their machines and thereby sacrifice the few pennies their labors added to the family income. That human beings can be induced to work for a wage averaging $3 to $4 a week, often less than $1 for individual workers, shows to what depths of dire want the depression has driven them. Even at this starvation scale, the children have not always been able to collect their promised pay, and unscrupulous employers have driven the wage steadily lower.

What possible defense these exploiters of child labor can offer has not been made public, but it may be discounted in advance. Secretary Perkins, while New York State Industrial Commissioner, made the following statement in refutation of the employers' specious explanations:

Frequently, employers charged with violations of the child labor law have pleaded that the child was hired because no other member of his family had a job and only the child's earnings stood between the family and destitution. I do not question that this is often true. But I do question the social wisdom of settling upon the shoulders of adolescents the burden of pulling us through the depression. I also question the complete veracity of an employer who claims that his motive in hiring adolescents is to help the child's family. Such child labor is not really intended to help the family. It is primarily a search for the cheapest possible labor. It would be better during this depression to keep children under 16 out of employment entirely, and to acknowledge a social responsibility for maintenance of families dependent upon them.

Uncontrolled inflation, where it has occurred, has always been the consequence of economic compulsion. Nations which have embarked upon an inflationary policy have been driven into it by extraordinary public expenditures, hopelessly unbalanced budgets, repeated deficits, ruined credit, adverse trade balances, heavy foreign debts and dwindling stocks of gold.

In the present American situation, there is not a single one of these conditions present. Our situation is, in fact, the exact opposite of one which would drive us into limitless inflation. We are not at war. We have cut public expenditures. We have balanced our budget. Our credit is sound. Our trade balance is running heavily in our favor. We are a creditor, not a debtor, to the world. Our gold store of $4,300,000,000 is more than one-third of the world's supply. It is more than any other nation has ever possessed. It is more than ample to back our currency and our credit.

Our experience is thus unique among nations which have chosen to inflate. There is no parallel for it in the history of past inflations. The demoralization which has followed the depreciation of other currencies need not alarm us. For us, the problem of control presents no difficulties. We can introduce such measures of inflation as seems necessary and wise under the circumstances. And we can check inflationary action at that point.

There is no economic pressure which can force the United States into an inflation which would get beyond control. America can go on to uncontrolled inflation only if it deliberately chooses to do so. We are confident that the present administration will make no such choice.

RARE NEWS FROM VIENNA.

One must go far away, says an old proverb, to get the latest news from home. Thus, we learn from banner headlines in the Vienna Herald that an American scholar in poring over Austria's archives to find the solution of "some of the most vital and pressing problems of the American commonwealth." What is hampering world economic relations, it is soberly stated, is the treaty powers of the American Senate, where, for ratification, "three-fourths majority is requisite." (This is a bit of news in itself, as the Constitution says two-thirds.) It is added that this evil is recognized by leading American statesmen, "such as the present Secretary of State, Hage." What he hopes to find in Austrian archives about the American Constitution, the savant does not reveal. We wish him well in his quest, however. On his return, if successful, he should be sent to the sacred libraries of Tibet to find the solution of the tariff problem, and then to the stone carvings of Easter Island, where the secrets of stabilized currency undoubtedly are concealed.

THE LAST STAND.

For the seventh time, the United States Senate has passed a bill sponsored by Senator Norris for Government operation of Muscle Shoals power and fertilizer plants. In the House, the power interests which have been fighting the proposal for more than a decade are making a last desperate stand. The House bill, passed some days ago, differs from the Senate bill in a vital respect, namely, it would compel the Government to seek contracts with private companies for transmission of the power generated before building transmission lines itself.

It is, of course, impossible for the Government to set up a demonstration of electric power costs unless it controls the whole process, from generator to consumer. The cost of generating electricity is but a fractional part of the price paid by the consumer.

The private power interests are reconciled to Government operation of the Muscle Shoals generating plants, but they have deadly fear of the showing that might be made if the Government owned transmission lines as well. The public would then have a yardstick by which it could measure the rates of private companies, and it is hardly a bold prophecy that the comparison would reveal that those rates are, in most cases, extortionate.

Mr. Roosevelt's position in the controversy is not entirely clear. Last July, he was reported as saying that if private companies are willing to strip the cost of their transmission lines of all water and wind, he would be willing to lease to them the power generated at Muscle Shoals. That is a large "if." Toward the present legislation, Mr. Roosevelt has thus far remained aloof, leaving Congress to work out the details. External evidence, however, such as Norris' support of the Roosevelt candidacy last fall, indicates the President will be guided in this matter by the position of Senator Norris. We do not believe Norris will consent to the proposal in the House bill, because it would virtually wreck his whole idea.

When the world depression began, new efforts were made for international tariff reform. A customs conference, attended by delegates of 30 nations and an American observer, met at Geneva in February, 1930. A mild proposal for a truce was evolved, but even this failed of ratification.

The Pan-American commercial congress of 1931 also attacked the problem, but Cuba's proposal of a two-year truce on tariff increases by American states failed of adoption.

Failure of all these efforts led to tariff-building races, initiated by jealousies, suspicion and nationalism.

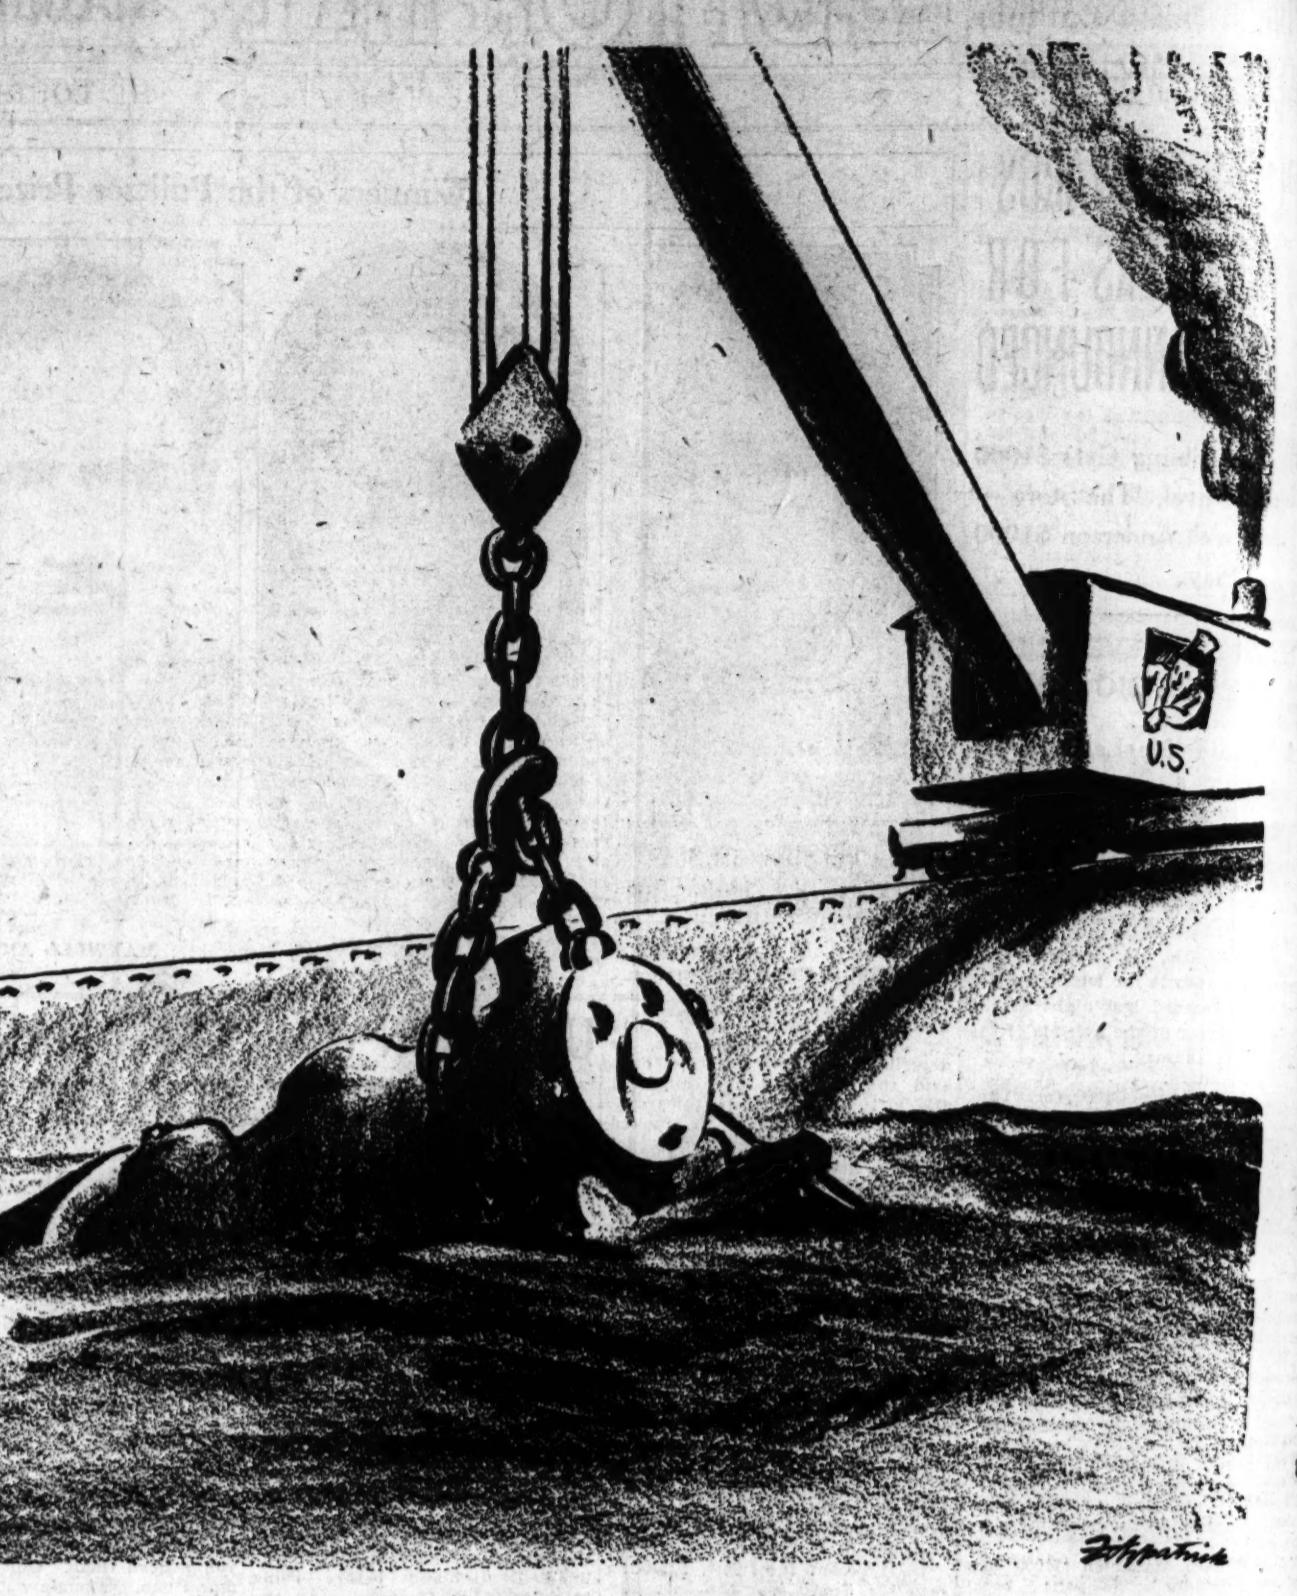

The 1933 conference, however, meets under conditions far more favorable to its success than did the previous assemblies. Under the ruinous rule of the depression, the world now recognizes to what a plight it has been brought by what Secretary Hull calls the "blind forces of shortsighted isolation." Preliminary work has been done for the impending parley on a scale not approached by its predecessors.

AN ENVIRABLE RECORD.

Railroad travel in the United States cost the life of only one passenger in 1932, a record that no other form of travel is able to boast.

Perhaps the explanation is in part the one given by an Australian for a similar record over there.

He says the engineer on a railroad locomotive does not drive with one arm around the fireman.

MAN OF ALL WORK.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

Accusations of Bad Faith

VERY large number of American private and public obligations contain a clause calling for payment in gold dollars of present weight and fineness. In failing to fulfill this clause, the American Government is being charged with a breach of faith. This is serious business. The honor of the Government is its most precious possession, and when it is impugned, as it is today, by reputable persons at home and abroad, the accusations must be faced squarely.

It cannot be denied that when gold is refused payment of a bond calling for payment in gold, the term of the bond may have been broken. To many persons, this will seem to settle the matter, and personally I share their feelings to the extent of wishing it were unnecessary to go behind the face of the bond and consider the actual situation which has brought the gold clause.

This is a most unfortunate misapprehension. No distinction is made between British obligations payable in sterling and those which were payable in foreign currencies.

The American holder of a British sterling bond receives paper pounds, and nothing else.

The American or the British holder of a British dollar bond receives dollars. The situation which the British statement refers to does not exist for us, since the American Government has no obligations payable in foreign currencies. It had, it would pay them in those currencies, exactly as the last administration.

convention of the State Federation of Women's Clubs at Hotel Jefferson.
Dr. Estella Ford Warren of the United States Public Health Service made the principal address on "Child Health and the Community."Mrs. W. L. Allee of Elgin, chairman of the public welfare department, reported that during the last two years the Federation had been instrumental in establishing a library at Algoa Farms, the State's interior reformatory, donating 200 volumes and the subscriptions to many magazines. She announced that Sept. 21, the day when the library was dedicated, had been set aside as an annual Library day for the club women.The report itemized welfare work which the various clubs had done in their own localities: Assisting local charities, helping crippled children and giving clothing to the poor. She urged that all clubs adopt and carry out vigorous child health program.

Election of Officers.

The election of new officers was

Plea for Clean Movies.

The Rev. Daniel S. Lord, S. J., of Loyola University, spoke at the sessions yesterday afternoon on "Motion Pictures and the Code." He said that now more than ever before was the time to "clean up the movies," because their "financial condition is simply terrible and they don't know where their next million is coming from." He said they would put into practice any plan which they thought would bring the crowds back.Father Lord said that the "sources from which the movies get their indecency," the magazines, long-run plays and the best sellers, must be attacked by groups who want to reform the motion picture industry.Mrs. Richard McClure of Washington, chairman of the National Federation motion picture committee, said it was impossible to expect the motion picture industry to make all pictures for children or adolescents and declared that parents must exercise judgment in choosing the pictures for their children. They should not let them attend adult

ALABAMA ATTACKS 19 STATE LAWS ON PRISON-MADE GOODS

Alabama Supreme Court to Decide These and Federal Laws Invalid.

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON, May 5.—The State of Alabama filed in the Supreme Court today a motion asking the court to declare invalid Federal and State laws under which sale of Alabama prison-made goods is prohibited.

Alabama's request is that the 19 states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon,

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Pennsylvania, Washington and Wisconsin and the United States be made defendants. All bar or require branding of prison goods, which Alabama claims is infringement of its rights and powers as a sovereign State.

The court is asked to declare unconstitutional the laws of the states named and a Federal statute also. The State claims it is illegal with a loss of an annual income of $1,000,000.

The Federal act of Jan. 12, 1929, which Alabama assails, becomes effective five years after that date, and authorizes states to treat prison-made goods brought into them by interstate commerce as though made within their borders to be regulated by State laws accordingly.

G. H. NEFF, PUBLISHER, DIES
Issued Livestock Dishes in Principal Cattle Centers.
By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, May 5.—George H. Neff, 71 years old, for many years publisher of Livestock dishes in Chicago, St. Louis, Omaha and Kansas City, died here last night. Two years ago he retired as President of the Drovers' Telegram Co., with which he had been connected since 1886 after its formation in 1885 by his brother, the late J. H. Neff.

"Habits—Just Habits" Quitting. NEW YORK, May 5.—MacFadden publications announced that with the June issue the magazine, "Habits—Just Habits," which has been edited by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, will cease publication. The decision to discontinue the magazine followed on Mrs. Roosevelt's decision to withdraw as editorial supervisor.

PARIS, May 5.—The Senate was warned yesterday that it must choose between economics or inflation and that the Government had been unable to obtain assurances from President Roosevelt of a moratorium on the debt payment due the United States in June.

Senator Henry Berenger, chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, demanded to know whether the Government was asking for a 90 per cent reduction in the war debts to meet the reduction in reparations granted Germany at the Lausanne conference.

"Our gesture of magnificent chivalry is not yet understood in Washington," he said. "Was the attitude of the American Senate modified by the Harriet Harriet? I ask explanation of this point."

Foreign Minister Joseph Paul Boncœur replied that the Senator had asked "embarrassing questions for which I must ask at least a 24-hour moratorium." Harriet, he said, had failed to obtain any definite indication on the debt settlement.

"The man we sent to Washington is returning," the Foreign Minister continued. "He contributed to the amelioration of the atmosphere, but it will be difficult to bring the two points of view together. The negotiations will be long. We would like to know if negotiations can take place with the certainty that a moratorium will be granted while they last. We did not want to invoke the clause of the Mellon-Berenger debt agreement permitting a moratorium on capital payments because we consider that the entire question must be re-examined."

Marcel Regnaut, reporter for the Budget Committee, declared: "Before it is too late we must choose: Either economics or inflation."

Financiers and bankers say that, unless the budget is cut drastically, there will be a threat of inflation. Weakness in state finances is the main danger, in the opinion of officials of the Bank of France, who insist that the budget must be balanced no matter what happens.

The Chamber has voted a budget with a deficit of 4,177,000,000 francs ($167,000,000) and the Senate is seeking to reduce it to 3,000,000,000 francs ($120,000,000).

viser, and several other American experts. The Italian Ambassador, Augusto Rossi, was the only other Italian in the conference.

Conversations later in the day with President Roosevelt at the White House were arranged for the Italian.

For the Argentine representatives here only one more general conference with American officials is planned. The Italian and Argentine representatives were invited to luncheon as guests of Secretary Hall today.

Another cause of considerable conjecture as to its possible effect on the London conference was the adverse reaction indicated in several foreign countries to the American refusal under Roosevelt's urging, to pay in gold the interest of Government bonds held abroad.

Other factors tending to complicate the situation, in the opinion of some officials here, are the negotiation of bilateral tariff treaties by Great Britain and the increasing of the British fund for maintaining the pound at a predetermined level.

President Roosevelt's selection of delegates for the economic conference took more definite shape today with authoritative word that one member will be James M. Cox, former Governor of Ohio and 1920 Democratic presidential nominee.

It was also said that Ralph W. Morrison of San Antonio, Texas, financier and ranchman who was a heavy contributor to the Roosevelt-Garner campaign, would be asked to become one of the American representatives. A White House invitation to Representative John M. Duff of Alabama, chairman of the House Insular Committee, to go to London was declined.

Secretary Hall is expected to head the delegation, at least at the start. Other nominees as likely to be members are: Raymond Moley, Assistant Secretary of State; Chairman Pittman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and possibly Chairmen Douglas and McReynolds of the House Ways and Means and Foreign Affairs Committees.

The President's Hard Work
London Tells Us
Can Ability Be Inherited?
Whose Gold Is It?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

On Sunday night, President Roosevelt, through newspapers and radio, will "give his account of his stewardship thus far." The President will admit that he has not been idle.

The next Government step, expected, not yet officially announced, will be a "revolutionary bill to mobilize and control industrial production through trade association action."

If, without interfering with the noble felish, "individual initiative," industries could be regulated, kept from the over-production that produces panic, and from such frightful waste as in the oil industry, squandering national resources, that would be admirable.

On the other hand, the Government, before undertaking control of all industries, should look carefully into the railroads, which have been governed for some years by the Government Interstate Commerce Commission. The condition of the railroads is not too good.

Our neighbor, Stalin, of Russia, will be interested in our proposed control of industry by Government, and will doubtless call us "copycats."

What little information, if it be information, Americans get, concerning "conversations" at Washington between Premier MacDonald and President Roosevelt, comes from London.

You are told, it seems hard to believe, that the United States will agree "to a modification of the gold embargo." President Roosevelt would hardly allow Englishmen or Frenchmen to draw out United States' gold while forbidding Americans to have any.

It is suggested also that the United States will arrange to tie up the pound, and the dollar so that "Britain will keep her export trade in the face of the devaluation of American currency."

Must we have inflated dollars at home without getting the benefit of them in trade abroad? That would be too bad.

Further, you are told there will be "a general revision of war debts" and Britain's payment due the United States on June 15 probably will not be paid.

Foreign countries have told us how many ships and what kind of guns we might have, which of our new battleships we must "junk." If they are now to tell us what we may do with our dollars, while at the same time escaping payment of their debts, you will give them credit for doing a complete job.

Dr. Leonard Huxley is dead at the age of 72. He was a son of Thomas Henry Huxley, the great biologist, and his death reminds you that talent really is inherited, under favorable conditions. Dr. Leonard Huxley was a distinguished editor, biographer and poet. His two sons, Julian Huxley and Aldous Huxley, are both brilliantly successful men, one as a biologist, the other as a novelist. The three Huxleys who descend from "the great Huxley" are fortunate in that they inherited intelligence, without inheriting a fortune that so often stupefies intelligence.

Our American "great men" of industry and finance concentrate on dollars. Their sons, as a rule, concentrate on self-indulgence and pleasure.

A former United States Senator questions the right of the Government to make Americans give up their gold. His amount of gold, only $120 worth, would not upset any gold basis, but he proposes to test in court the legality of an order that says to Americans:

"Gold is too precious a metal for Americans and they will kindly bring it all in."

No other country has done this and many Americans, having obediently deposited their gold, which was, by the way, THEIR PROPERTY, ask themselves if it would not have been better to make foreign nations that owe us $10,000,000,000 IN GOLD DOLLARS pay part of that.

Ten-year-old girl, Margaret Moore, kidnapped in Massachusetts, was allowed to leave school in the company of a Negro, who said he had been sent for her.

The child did not know the Negro, the school did not know him. That such a thing should happen is inconceivable. It should be a warning to parents and to schools.

This kidnapping is a heart-rending case, the unhappy father broadcasting to kidnappers a request to treat his little girl kindly, offering to pay any ransom, the kidnappers refusing.

2 ARE WOMEN MORE TALKATIVE THAN MEN?

IS IT POSSIBLE TO DISLIKE A TRAIT IN A PERSON WITHOUT DISLIKING THE PERSON WHO POSSESSES IT?

YES OR NO

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1. Sociologists who have studied this extremely important question find it better for adopted children to keep their own names. It prevents other children from looking on them as something "different." It gives the child much more of a sense of "belonging" to a family of his own. It also avoids the hurdle, with the psychological effect, so many foster parents find hard, namely, that of telling the little one they are not its real parents.

2. No, with qualifications. For example, we do not dislike "egotism," or the telling of long stories, or failure to rise when ladies

EVERYDAY RELIGION
By THE REV. JOSEPH FORT NEWTON
WHY LIVE IN SLAVERY?

1. OW few of us are really free, though it would make us mad to be told that we are slaves. But we are slaves, though we are not in chains of dark, coiling, snake-like chains about us. How many are held captive by some queer, crazy complex, by which life is distorted, and from which they might be set free by facing the facts.

Of course, in a sense, we are all bound hand and foot, tied down to our work, all kinds of dark, coiling, snake-like chains about us. How many are held captive by some queer, crazy complex, by which life is distorted, and from which they might be set free by facing the facts.

A secret vice may make us a slave, because to get away from it means resolute effort. Even sorrow may enslave us, because we are often afraid to face life itself; we forge them for ourselves. Not only do we forge our chains, but we hug them, cling to them; and actually love them—or at least are unable to break them.

The slaves of fear are a multitude, made creeps and cringers by all sorts of fears for which there is no necessary fear of motives, for which there does not exist.

Pride, too, ties us down, limiting us to the pretty things that have to do with self, shutting us up in a tiny cell of self-will, as in a narrow cage.

together for a year and have always gotten along. We find our amusements in church, picnics, auto drives, therefore we spend very little money.

Do you think it would be all right to marry and all four live together in a small furnished apartment until we can all stand on our own feet? The expense would, of course, be divided among us. Please answer soon in the paper as we are anxious to accept your advice.

Yours in waiting.

2. Your plan might turn out all right; but that sort of arrangement brings people too close together and involves too much to be successful—a rule. It is far safer to live to yourselves and settle your own problems alone. I suppose, too, that you realize, there can be little "auto-driving" with the income you mention. If you two girls have jobs, hang on to them for a year; until conditions are different, economically, and put your weddings off until you have a little more financial security.

3. This is not what you might call popular advice; but after all, the column hopes to be helpful, more than popular—both when it is consistent.

Dear Mrs. Carr: CONGRATULATIONS! We would much rather you would write the column than "Schopenhauer Jr."

And, incidentally, a spray of orchids to the young lady who did such a splendid job of pulling me over the coals. NEVER AGAIN.

The girl only chance is to find a hero who rescues her and takes her out of town. Heaven help our poor mothers if they should find out how capable their daughters are of managing their own affairs. Mothers, I say, should be mothers.

Dear Mrs. Carr: Your husband ought to be able to see a few things for himself and it is up to him to demand for you the right kind of respect from her. You should have, some time ago, stopped spending your money on her and, in doing so, have been managing her when she was in failure in her efforts to you. LISTEN,
WORLD!
by Elsie Robinson

He Owes You Nothing, Lady!

WHY does the average wife believe that her husband owes her a pittance debt because he married her, and feel the everything she does for said husband is a favor which he can never sufficiently repay?

You haven't conferred a many more of a favor on the big boy by marrying him, sister, than he has conferred on you. You wanted him as much as he wanted you, and worked as hard to get him. May be harder!

And he sacrificed as much for the deas as you did. It's a serious thing for a girl to put her life in a man's keeping, but just as serious for a man to put his life in a girl's keeping; and girlish dreams are not a particle more precious than boyish illusions. A boy can think as much romantic nonsense in a second as a girl can in a year and it hurts him just as hard to be jarred out of it.

Tradition to the contrary, it's the groom who usually is all in a twister, not the bride. She knows what she's all about, but he's better off than she is.

Well, how about HIS freedom? You gummed up his liberty quite as much as he gummed up yours, and, in trying to give up liberty, he acquired the upkeep of another healthy human—plus possible additions.

"See how hard I worked for him!"

See how hard he worked for you! And why, at any rate, should you regard your work as such an amazing performance? Wouldn't you have had to work, even if you hadn't married him? And would you have had to endure the normal amount of snubs, indifference, bad temper and backache incident to any job?

Then why consider yourself an uncrowned martyr because you've elected to earn your living by writing or selling notions?

WHY SHOULD A GIRL, WHO COULD NEVER QUALIFY FOR MORE THAN A $20 JOB WHEN SHE WAS SINGLE, EXPECT $4,000.00 SERVICE AFTER SHE'S MARRIED AND BEEP ABOUT IT, EVEN WHEN SHE GETS THAT?

"But I gave him the best years of my youth!"

You did nothing of the sort, sister.

Your youth passed.

You didn't give it to him—it just vanishes, as all youth vanishes. Growing old is nobody's fault. Why put him in the dog house because it passed?

Especially, lady! Your husband doesn't owe you any more than you owe him. You elected to say, "DO," and most of you worked overtime to get the chance to say it. You were wise.

Generally speaking, there's no finer job on earth than that of being a wife or mother. If, in your case, it didn't turn out to be a good job, get out—as you'd get out from any other job. But if you stay in—act regular.

MEN at HER FEET
A New Serial Story
By ROB EDEN

CHAPTER FIVE

WHEN Vicki took the letter from Mrs. Laird's fingers the next morning she was puzzled. No one ever wrote her at the shop. Everybody from Crofton, her mother and her school friends were only correspondents sent their mail to the John Arlen apartment.

Never before in the year she had been at the Mayfair had she received a letter there. Some of the girls did, and Mrs. Laird gave them their letters in the morning when they came in for inspection.

"For me?" she asked.

"It's addressed to you, Vicki."

And it was "Miss Vicki Arlen, Mayfair Beauty Shop, 930 Grand Avenue." The writing was unfamiliar, a flowing, easy, legible hand. An advertisement, perhaps, sent in a plain envelope to tantalize her. She turned it over as she went to her desk. No address on the back.

The phone light glared red before she could open it, and she looked again at the strange envelope.

It was with some excitement that Vicki slit open the envelope that might be an advertisement, and which didn't look like an advertisement because it was written by hand and had no address on the back.

It was addressed to her, Vicki. The writing for a girl to put her life in a man's keeping, and girlish dreams are not a particle more precious than boyish illusions. A boy can think as much romantic nonsense in a second as a girl can in a year and it hurts him just as hard to be jarred out of it.

Design for a Child's Apron

SETTLING HOLLYWOOD'S BIG FIGHTS

INCE the inception of motion pictures, scenarists have developed into independent organizations in which one person or a whole group decided to settle things in their own way without any aid from the law. Exciting? Always.

Now the motion picture industry as a whole is doing the same thing—taking the law into its own hands. Perhaps this step was prompted by the "brain children" of its authors. Or the movement may have had an entirely different source.

However, one thing is certain. Tracy is not the only discontented. Rather, it was a desire to deal quick and sure justice to all members of a gigantic industry.

It was just about six years ago that the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences came into existence with Douglas Fairbanks as its first president. While organized principally to settle disputes arising within the industry and to encourage advancement of the business as a whole, the Academy now is of little consequence.

The "film" wasn't Ray's idea. Vicki, his fiance, was.

Now that has become its most important duty. It's safe to say that half of the 400 cases which have been settled by the Academy have come before it during the last 12 months.

An interesting case which shows just how smoothly and quickly the Academy machinery moves is the one of Pauline Starke vs. James Cagney.

During the early days of the talkies Cagney engaged Miss Starke for a leading role in "The Great Gabbo." According to Miss Starke, Cagney engaged her for a term of four weeks at a stipulated salary of $1500 a week but after a few days he replaced her with Betty Compson, then his wife, and paid Pauline no money whatever.

Cagney claimed it was impossible for him to use Pauline because she could not sing. Pauline filed suit.

Two years after the suit was filed, there still was no settlement. So Pauline withdrew her suit and went before the Academy conciliation board. Two weeks later the case was settled in favor of the actress.

THE grounds for this decision were that at the time "The Great Gabbo" was produced no one knew how well certain players could sing.

Nothing? Vicki hastily informed her. And he didn't, except that she had a note from him in her purse, and a date. If she wanted it, on Saturday evening at 8 at Hugo's.

"Mrs. Richards thinks everything about and met you in a thoroughly decent way, but I'm impatient and things like that take time. So if you come, and I hope you do, I shall be delighted, and if you don't, I'll have to eat a solitary dinner by myself, which would be a shame when I've already called Cagney and told him to give me a table in the corner for two. Lastly, so you'll know whom to ask for, my name is Scott Jameson."

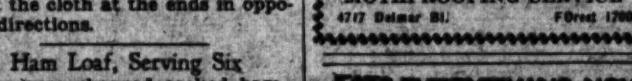

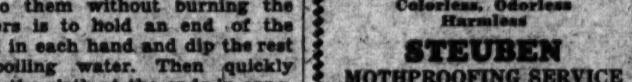

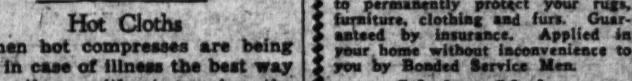

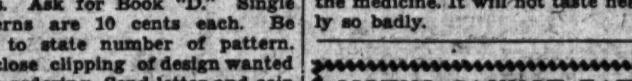

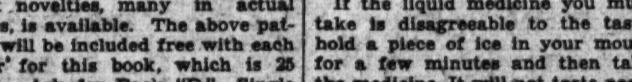

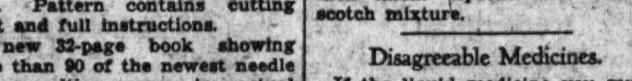

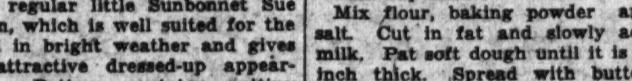

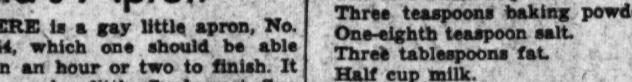

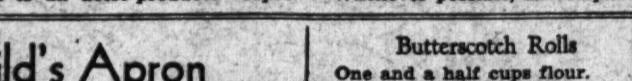

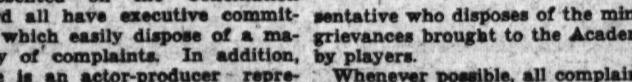

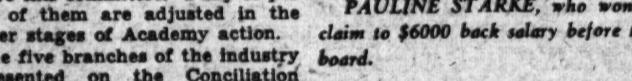

She was a man in the gray flannel suit had a name, and it was Scott Jameson. Not a bad name. Scott Jameson.

The note she read again when she had time, and once more later in the morning. Each time she read it she found something she hadn't seen before. The long cross on the "S" was the way he'd gilded into each other, the queer twist on the "S" in his signature.

It must have been he who called yesterday for her name. How else could he know it? And it certainly was the man in the gray flannel suit who had written the note. She had collided with no one else she could remember. The note, too, was like his smile, gay, impulsive. He might be fun to know.

"To hear Mrs. Richards talk about you, Vicki, was like a dream come true. She wanted to know when you were working."

"I'm not working," Vicki said.

SEA OF GLORY

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE.

Janet answered the door herself. Everything blurred before his eyes. He realized dimly that she was wearing something green. "Hello, Scotty," she said casually, and walked into the living room. He followed her, and they sat down on the couch. Suddenly he felt awkward, self-conscious.

"Well," he said, "how are you?" He heard himself laughing, like a bumpkin who was shy, and wished he hadn't laughed.

"I'm all right. You had my letter?"

"Oh," she said, "I just didn't want you to do anything you didn't want to, just because of me."

She wasn't quite at ease, either. She was fingering the hem of her skirt, looking at it hard, not looking at him.

"Cigarettes?"

"Thank you." His fingers touched her lighting it for her. Her hands were cold. She didn't look into his eyes. They were very close like that. She used to always.

"I cracked the darn expedition you know," he said.

"Really," he said, "I saw something in the paper."

"Yes," he said, "it was all the silliest business anyway. I don't know why I got into it. Yes, I do. So I could get away from you, so far that I wouldn't be listening for the phone any more, hoping, hoping. There was a dinner of the experts, and a good tight time. I told them I thought the whole thing was a lot of hoover. Then, Saturday, Chapin called up to haw me out and I told him I was through-through with the whole works, the job and the expedition and everything."

He got up, found an ash tray and set it down between them on the couch. She seemed to him to be lingering over each separate movement, and he found himself doing that, too.

"Well," he said, "I'm glad you did that, Scotty. I think you'll be much happier."

"Yes," he said, "I guess I will. It was sweet of you to write that letter."

"Oh, that," she said; "that was nothing."

That was nothing. He'd thought it was so much. He'd thought it meant that everything was all right. Why were they sitting here in the sun? Didn't she care for him at all anymore? Didn't she share this persistent aching need he'd had for so long?

"Janet," he said, "can't we go back together again?" She didn't even need to speak. If she'd just look at him and smile he'd take her in his arms. But she didn't look at him.

"I don't know, Scotty," he said; "we'd have to get things straightened out."

"Just, don't you want me any more?"

She acted as if she didn't hear. "We had some bad times. I couldn't face any more of those quarrels. It's better like this."

"But, Janet, they weren't important."

She looked up quickly. "Yes, they were. To me, anyway. We're not the sort of people who can quarrel and not have it mean anything. Oh, I don't know. What are you going to do now?"

"I can do. There's a firm of consulting engineers have in town—you know, George Westing's firm. I think they'd take me in. I wouldn't make much, of course, but we must have saved quite a bit."

"Yes," she said. "We did. I don't know."

"Darling," he said, "please, won't you take me back? You know we love each other, Janet. I want you so badly."

"Not like that, Scotty."

"What do you mean? Darling!" She put her hand on his arm. "We've got to get back where we were, Scotty."

"We are back. All the trouble—"

"No," she said. "We haven't been friends for so long. Not for—not for ever."

"Janet, you mustn't say that. Think of Edmund."

"Yes," she said, "I know. We've been lovers and then we quarreled all the time."

"But we won't—"

"You can't just wish away everything, Scotty. It would be so easy for us to go back together."

"Yes," he said. "So easy, so wonderful, to ease this terrible loneliness."

"But we mustn't, Scotty."

"Why not?"

"You know why not, if you think."

"No, I don't. No, I don't just want to want you so, Janet. She was concerned with that it was all my fault. She was very young, just a kid. She was all wrapped up in him."

"The afraid I couldn't ever like that. Blind devotion isn't my line."

"No, thank Heaven," he said.

He wanted to put his arms around her, but he knew that he mustn't do that. It wasn't natural driving like this. Not touching. Janet, if he could just put his arm around her he wouldn't think so much about it, but because he couldn't it filled his mind so he found it hard to talk to her naturally. Surely there wasn't any harm in that. He'd do that even if they weren't married. He took one hand off the wheel and then put it back again.

"No, Edna," he said, "what can I do to show you all this?"

"We've got to know, both of us," she said. "We've got to be friends again. I don't know whether you'll be willing to try. You probably think I'm being silly about this, that I'm posing, keeping you off like this."

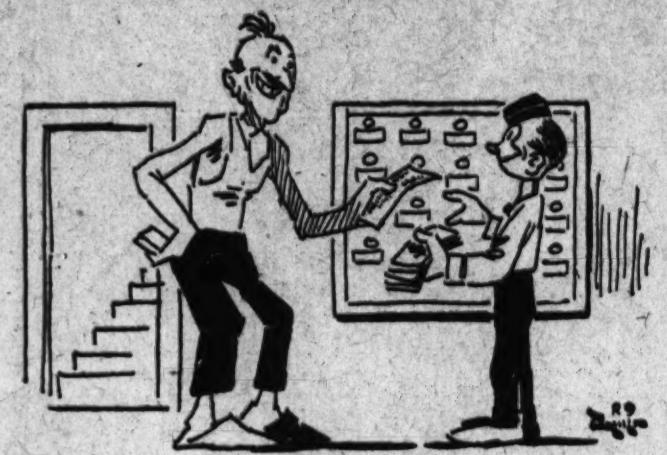

He took his hand away. "I see," he said. "Well, then what can we do?"

"No, please, Scotty. Can't you see?" If we go back now, it may not last. We may get hurt again. I can't have it happen to me again."

He took his hand again. "I see," he said. "Well, then what can we do?"

"We've got to know, both of us," she said. "We've got to be friends again. I don't know whether you'll be willing to try. You probably think I'm being silly about this, that I'm posing, keeping you off like this."

Engaged and Married

Dear Mrs. Post:
MY FIANCÉE'S relatives are calling on me soon, for the first time. What shall I do and say when they come, and after their visit, what are my duties to them?

Answer: Behave as you would to any other friendly neighbors when they come to see you. Above all, be simple and natural. Try not to think about yourself. A few days after their visit, you go to see them.

Dear Mrs. Post:
I am going to marry for the second time, although I am now only 19 years old. It is improper for my parents to announce my engagement.

DETECTIVE PATRICK MICHAEL TIMOTHY HOGAN, like his name covered a large territory. Seen from the rear he was a compact bulk. A wide expanse of back swelled into a thick neck, on top of which a black derby rested on outspread ears. Hogan's besetting virtue was patience. He could wait for hours or days or months, as steadfast as Gibraltar, without a motion of face to indicate he was waiting for anything or anyone.

He knew now, as he stood in a store across from the Elite Poolroom, that he might have to wait several days. But eventually Willie the Checker would appear, and then—

Willie appeared and Hogan rattled some handcuffs in his ear.

I know that I must not wear white and orange blossoms, but are there any other limitations set upon a second marriage?

Answer: There is no reason why the announcement of your engagement may not be made, as you suggest. Wedding announcements are exactly the same for a second marriage as for a first. You may wear white with a hat and carry a white flower in your hair, or a white flower in your corsage.

Answer: The blossoms you have chosen are good for a second marriage, but not for a first. Guard money and personal well-being during May, December and January. Don't try too hard to be the object of desire. Avoid danger: January 11 to 18, and May 3 to 13, 1934.

the last stronghold.

The brotherhood of man is now on the political threshold of the world; but the old regime of selfishness and exploitation is still alive and defending its old position, even though it totters. Money is the last stronghold of the old order in present day conditions.

True, as we are told, money without what it represents is doomed; soon our children will taught the truth; that it is important to find out how much got his money than to learn how much of it he has. These are considerations that the coming economics convention at London should respect, or all its work will have to be done over. Selfishness would have less to say in August than in June. If they start it too soon, I hope it lasts till August. That will help.

Dodging the Spring Weather

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

DOWN South you can depend on your seasons by the calendar. Up here, spring has a habit of appearing and vanishing. One day the sun is shining, the birds are preening and the flowers are blooming. The next day you are up to your whiskers in all kinds of storms and the weather is so bad that quinine pills taste like rock candy.

That's why the spring golfers leave their clubs home and take nothing along but changes of clothing. It is not unusual to see a New Yorker change from his summer to winter underwear right in the middle of Fifth Avenue traffic.

That's why we never trust anything or anybody. That's why a Northerner on his way to paradise will carry his umbrella with him.

Instead of the birds warbling the flowers start to whistle and winter after a slight interruption resumes its schedule as usual. Our climate is as dependable as a boxer's advice over the telephone.

But it's ours and we have to make the most of it. The result is that nobody plans any picnics in advance even with the aid of the thermos bottle. Admiral Byrd had no prettier lawn parties at the North Pole than one can stage on Long Island where nature is serene and only man is violent.

It's tough, erratic climate but you can't do without it. We get to love it. And, like the monkey's child, while it ain't much to brag about, it is all our own.

POLICE ASSERT GANG PLOTTED ABDUCTION

Deny Emphatically the Report That Member of Family Was Connected With Crime at Harwichport, Mass.

By the Associated Press
HARWICHPORT, Mass., May 6.—Kenneth and Cyril Buck, brothers, the latter one of those on the boat Bob when kidnapped Margaret McMath, 10 years old, was recovered by police yesterday were arrested here today by State police.

Gen. Daniel Needham, head of the State police, announced that the Buck brothers were under arrest. Cyril as the go-between and Kenneth as the man in the automobile who wore the black hood when the girl was restored to her father.

The police said late today they had recovered all the money paid as a ransom. They said $10,000 was found in a closet in the home of Kenneth Buck, one of the two brothers, held for the kidnapping, and that $2,000 was found in a tin can in a bureau.

Needham said he had a full statement from Kenneth Buck, unemployed chauffeur, admitting a part in the crime. The commissioner said Cyril had admitted a connection with the affair in bringing about the return of the girl but maintained his part was innocent.

Needham at first said he had a confession from both men but later modified this in respect to Cyril's statement.

Admits Having $10,000.

In the course of the questioning, Needham said, Kenneth admitted having had $10,000. Two other men are being sought, Needham said.

Needham, asked whether he thought the brothers were members of a kidnapping gang, replied that he believed it to be a good assumption.

Needham said explicitly that no member of the McMath family was associated with the kidnapping.

The ransom demand was $70,000, of which $10,000 was to go to Kenneth Buck and $10,000 to Cyril Buck and the other $50,000 was to go to the other two men, Gen. Needham said. The State police head quoted Kenneth Buck as saying he would hand his $10,000 over to the police.

Needham said Cyril refused his $10,000.

While Needham and a corps of State detectives questioned Buck, Mrs. Cyril Buck wept. She later said she had not seen her husband since he disappeared Wednesday night, the night the contract between the kidnappers and the McMaths, just before he had to be seen.

Tells of Being Encaged.

Mrs. Buck, one of her neighbors relates, said that on Wednesday night she and her husband had a dinner engagement at the home of Theodore Holmes, brother of Miss Ruth Holmes, school secretary, who answered the fictitious telephone call that resulted in the dismissal of the McMath girl from school Tuesday before classes ended.

Because of a premonition that her husband would not come home to go to the Holmes dinner, Mrs. Buck was quoted as saying, she went there alone.

In discussing her husband's absence with him today, Mrs. Buck was said to have related that he said someone called at his West Harwich garage Wednesday night and forced him to go with them.

Mrs. Buck said she was unaware that her husband had any connection with the return of the McMath child until word of the child's
